Hello,

I value the effort and commitment you put into making commissions more efficient.

The Commission on the Environment has international standing, and it should continue to be a decision making body. Our city has gained international recognition as a climate leader thanks to its efforts to host the Climate Summit and its achievements around pushing for net zero emissions. These achievements depend on a Commission that has the power to make policy. San Francisco's credibility and influence on the international scene would be diminished by an advisory only organization.

We shouldn't compromise our leadership reputation. Please keep the Commission's power.
