One victim was pulled from the water and did not make it. SFPD to investigate along with the Coast Guard.

Firearm Seizures: 514 year-to-date.

Chief Lew reported that the letter of inquiry was submitted to Supervisor Fielder last night at around 1800 hours and will be posted on the Commission site tonight. He also talked about a possibility of a townhall meeting in regards to the Trans March and stated that he is amenable to a future townhall meeting but at this point is unable to commit to a date as there is an ongoing investigation with a lot of evidence to go through and there are a few defendants whose current cases are going through the court system at this time. Chief Lew asked, due to those reasons, he'd like to postpone the town hall meeting until after adjudication.

Chief Lew also spoke about an article on Wired Magazine regarding SFPD drone operations and the discovery of a URL or a link that was publicly available on a website used by security researchers and described numerous incidents that they recorded over two days prior to alerting anyone about it. At issue were security concerns and concerns whether drone flights were in policy. Chief Lew stated there's no evidence that it was a large-scale breach and that it is not a mainstream website. Wired Magazine was contacted by SFPD and were told that there are two days of recordings. SFPD learned that there are about 20 incidents that were recorded and confirmed that they were all in-policy. The link was immediately turned off, and all links are turned off pending new security measures. Chief Lew stated that RTIC and drones in general are a game changer for the public safety in San Francisco and also comes with great responsibility to use those tools in a lawful manner and that SFPD is safe-guarding people's privacy.
