HOUSING

New behavioral-health facility on Treasure Island to break ground soon

SF Examiner, October 20th 2026

A new behavioral-health facility with plans to break ground on Treasure Island before the end of the year is expected to add hundreds of treatment beds to The City's current system.

The facility will be a six-story, 120-unit site with a capacity of up to 300 beds, the majority of which will be transitional recovery housing for people transitioning from inpatient substance use treatment to more independent living with outpatient treatment.

Construction is expected to begin in November and finish in June 2028, according to a presentation made by the San Francisco Department of Public Health to the Board of Supervisors Budget and Finance Committee earlier this month.

ISLAND RESIDENTS

People Behaving Badly: No treasure on Treasure Island

KRON 4, October 16th 2026

Takes us out to Treasure Island in this week's people behaving badly.

"There's not enough parking for us here. They're all these apartments. They haven't accommodated us for parking." "Literally every day I have to set me alarm for 06:00AM. Come out here and move my car [I] either have a ticket or literally it'll be towed. $1000 a month just for tickets." Welcome to Treasure Island where despite its name, it was very little treasure. It's a [place] where bike lanes end abruptly and parking is at a bare minimum.

Treasure Island Is Changing, but Its Breathtaking Bay Views Remain

Comstock Magazine, October 7th 2026

Though I think about taking the Treasure Island exit every time I cross the Bay Bridge, I hadn't explored the unique San Francisco suburb since a photography class trip 11 years ago. I finally visited earlier this spring, and it's really changed.

Despite the ongoing makeover, I was happy to see that it has kept its classic feel and breathtaking views of the San Francisco Bay and skyline, accessible at almost every turn on this mile-long artificial island.

I ranked San Francisco's best views. Then readers sent me a stunner I'd missed

SF Chronicle, October 15th 2026

When I compiled my list of the 10 best views in San Francisco this month, with Mount Davidson on top, controversy was part of the plan.

After all, we left off Twin Peaks entirely, tantamount to picking the greatest 49ers of all time and snubbing Joe Montana. We also dropped the beloved views from Tank Hill, Corona Heights and Telegraph Hill's Jack Early Park, the mini-est of miniparks that comfortably holds just four humans at a time.

But when the "How could you miss it?" outrage arrived in my inbox, it came as a surprise. Readers on social media and over email were lobbying for Panorama and Signal Point parks on Yerba Buena Island, two of the city's newest parks in one of the hardest-to-reach locations. One message from reader Mark Johnson appeared a smidge confused, because he wrote to me about these parks earlier this summer.

Behind-the-scenes look at construction of Bay FC Performance Center on Treasure Island

Yahoo Sports, October 23rd 2026

Bay FC will open its new performance center on Treasure Island in less than three months.

ABC7 Eyewitness News toured the facility with Bay FC's four founders: Brandi Chastain, Aly Wagner, Danielle Slaton and Leslie Osborne. During the tour, one of the founders reacted to the facility, saying, "Wow! Wowzers, just like the good ol' days."

Bay FC currently shares practice space with San Jose State and looks forward to having its own home.

"We never had anything close to this, but that's why we're doing this, that's why we're founders, that's why we wanted to build this is because our players deserve more," Osborne said. "These players are going to produce incredibly entertaining soccer with what we have here."

Woman Arrested on Treasure Island After Suspected Hit-and-Run In SF's Tenderloin

SFist, October 26th 2026

A fatal hit-and-run collision in the Tenderloin early Sunday led to the arrest of a female suspect who fled the scene and was found on Treasure Island.

San Francisco police responded to the scene of a pedestrian collision around 1:05 am Sunday on the 800 block of Ellis Street, as KTVU reports.

A male victim was found at the scene, and he was taken to the hospital where he pronounced dead.

"The vehicle and driver involved fled the scene prior to the officers' arrival," the SFPD said in a release. "Through the course of the investigation, officers traced the vehicle's location to Treasure Island. Upon arrival officers discovered that California Highway Patrol officers had the suspect vehicle stopped for an unrelated traffic violation."
