Scope of resource guide

As per updated safer use supply distribution policy, effective April 30, 2025:

Staff must offer treatment referrals and connections to treatment at every interaction to the extent practical and receivable by the participant. At a minimum, staff should inform every participant accessing safer use supplies that the program site is also a resource to learn more and be connected to treatment.

Scope of resource guide:

This is not an exhaustive list of services and programs available in San Francisco. This resource guide is primarily intended to cover services for people who use drugs provided by SFDPH and SFDPH-funded partners.

The referral information is provider-facing and should not be shared with clients.

Frequency of updates:

This resource guide will be published online at the sf.gov website and sent via email to providers upon request. An updated resource guide will be published once per month. The lower-lefthand corner indicates how recently this version has been updated.

If you have feedback on this resource guide, services that should be in one of these categories, program updates for services listed, etc.: contact Neva Legallet neva.legallet@sfdph.org.

If someone is having a medical or psychiatric emergency, defer to your agency's policies and procedures around what to do in a medical or psychiatric emergency.

Best practices

As of 4/1/2026

Email neva.legallet@sfdph.org to receive updated version.

- Call programs ahead of time to confirm clients' eligibility, including any requirements around ID or insurance.
- When possible, provide support to clients seeking services, such as no-fee DMV vouchers, transportation, additional information about program hours & services.
- When it is within scope of your service, warm hand-offs are encouraged.
